PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

[All society and personal notes for the Sunday issue of the Journal, to secure publication, must be sent to the city editor by Saturday noon.]

During the past week there have been several events having an interest socially. The reception given by Mrs. I. P. Gray and Mrs. Pierre Gray, Wednesday afternoon, followed by a card party the same evening, was the most notable. There were nearly two hundred friends invited to both. The Children's Club was also entertained that evening at the Arsenal by Major and Mrs. Comly, and at it were several visitors from other cities. The marriage of Miss Lillian Blake and Mr. Louis Edwin Francis occurred, and a card-party given to Miss Summers, of Louisville, by Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Byram, completed a day and evening of society doings. A tea at 4 o'clock Friday, given by Miss Coffin and Miss Florence Coffin in compliment to their cousin and guest, Miss Nellie Clark, of Richmond, was a pleasant feature of the week's entertainments. The closing reception that evening of Mr. D. B. Brenneke and pupils brought out parents and friends of the dancers, and Tomlinson Hall, where it occurred was a scene of great beauty it occured, was a scene of great beauty with hundreds of children and adults in full evening dress, upon the main floor, while spectators filled the galleries and borders of the hall.

There was an entertainment given some months ago and the lady giving it extended her invitations verbally, or in case of not finding her friends at home when she went to invite them sent a note. The invitations were to this effect: "I would like to have you come and spend Friday afternoon with me and meet a few friends. Come early, as it is to be a very informal gathering." A few of the ladies took her invitation literally. They were there early and met a few who came like themselves. About 4 o'clock there were nearly lifty ladies present, dressed in their best raiment. The few early comers had not dressed in their best, and, although they looked well, they knew they might have looked better, and they certainly would have felt better and not uncomfortable all the afternoon, simply because their hostess had misrepresented her entertainment to them. The hostess should have said she expected fifty ladies, or forty, or whatever the number was to be, and or whatever the number was to be, and let her guests understand the nature of the gathering she would have. There is nothing that makes a woman feel more uncomfortable than to know she is not as well dressed as others in a company of ladies, and a hostess is not kind and considerate of her friends when she will allow them to believe she is to have a "greatly in them to believe she is to have a "small informal" when it is not. There are some women very much afraid the impression will be made that they are giving a large company. They are thus selfish and think more of something that will possibly be a triffe annoying to them, than of the probability of some of their guests being unhappy. If you are going to have a small (literally small) company, say so; but if there are to be more than a dozen, and, above all things, if there is to be one stranger there, let the guests know it; then they will array themselves accordingly. They will be agreeable and contented, and help every one to enjoy the afternoon. them to believe she is to have a "small in-

One of the latest fashions for parties is the "Heart" party. At a luncheon given not long ago, the tables were heart-shaped, covered with salmon-pink satin and lacecloths. The cakes, ices and favors were also heart-shaped, and even the flowers were made in similar design. The color was all salmon-pink. After the luncheon was fin-ished the game of hearts was played, and favors were in keeping with the idea of the party. Hearts have been trumps for cen-turies, but not in just this style, and the heart fever for companies and jewelry is just at is height.

The coming week we propose to offer inducements enough to crowd our store every day during the week. Every day will offer its attractions, not only in low prices, but in desirable goods.

> NIGHT LAST

We put in the departments all the goods belonging to the summer season. To-morrow you will find many styles of goods not before shown. Some of the goods you saw last week you will find to-morrow 20 per cent less. We recognize the fact that we must not only sell goods less than when on Washington street, but very much less. Some of the goods on sale to-morrow are just what you must buy for the coming season. You can buy them from us for about half the price you pay on Washington street. We want the money for this stock and it must go.

DRAPERY NETS .- We have forty pieces of fine Drapery Nets yet in stock. We propose to make you prices here that will tell you more than we can write about them. Cost no consideration. They must go.
